

SEEKING PART-TIME SPEECH-LANGUAGE PATHOLOGIST LEXINGTON, MA

The Institute for Learning and Development (ILD) is seeking a part-time speech-language pathologist with expertise and interest in the school age and young adult population to meet the needs of a growing speech and language department. ILD is a private, clinical practice that provides individualized educational and psychological diagnostic as well as therapeutic services for students of all ages with learning, attention, and executive function difficulties. The practice is staffed by experienced and dedicated professionals with backgrounds in the fields of psychology, education, speech pathology, and learning disabilities. ILD is closely tied with its non-profit sister organization, ResearchILD. Together, these two organizations work side by side to provide research-based services to domestic and international schools in conjunction with clinically informed research, parent/teacher training, and instructional materials development.

If you are looking for a unique opportunity with an enthusiastic, innovative, and collaborative team of professionals, a flexible schedule, supportive work environment, and exciting possibilities to be an integral part of expanding our Reading and Language department, please contact us for further information.

Requirements:

- Master's degree in Speech-Language Pathology/Communication Sciences and Disorders
- Massachusetts state licensure as a Speech-Language Pathologist
- Must have the Certificate of Clinical Competence
- Preference will be given to applicants who are also trained literacy and/or learning disabilities specialists
- Experience in providing diagnostic and therapeutic speech-language services
- Prior experience working in a school setting preferred
- An interest in gaining experience in conducting educational therapy and working collaboratively with an interdisciplinary team

Other Opportunities:

- Participation in other ResearchILD activities, such as conferences, workshops, and publications
- Collaboration in a highly professional, collegial environment
- Consultation with schools and families around IEP development and revision
- Opportunities to design small group summer programs or parent trainings

Contact Information:

If you are interested in applying, please send a copy of your resume along with a letter of intent, attention to:

Wendy A. Stacey, M.S.
Director of Reading and Language
Institute for Learning and Development
4 Militia Drive, Suite 20
Lexington, MA 02421

For general questions, please contact Wendy via telephone at (781) 861-3711, ext. 107 or email at wstacey@ildlex.org.